Good morning, Ken.

Attached are the materials from last week's natural gas fuel procurement meeting from Natalie Karas at EDF.

Best,
Jennifer

Hi Jennifer,

Thank you for the opportunity to present, and I've attached the presentation slides.

Most states have sharing mechanisms in place to split revenues between ratepayers and shareholders. In North Carolina, that split is 75% for ratepayers and 25% for shareholders. The attached case at page 4 explains in detail this sharing mechanism for Piedmont.

Best,
Natalie

Jonathan and Natalie,

Thank you both again for your participation in our discussion yesterday! I hope you can assist me with the following two requests.

First, can you provide me with a copy of your slide deck? Several folks have asked for it for reference purposes as well as for the benefit of the few who had to leave early.

Second, during your remarks, Jonathan, I believe you referred to one state that requires utilities that sell excess gas on the secondary market to split those profits with rate payers. Can you point me to that state and its relevant statutes/policies?

Many thanks in advance,
Jennifer
